

Secondary Language Arts Classroom Collection Access Form

Board Policy EFA Instructional Resources – Instructional Materials requires that the parents of secondary language arts students must give written permission allowing their student to access books in the language arts classroom. These collections of books are referred to as “classroom collections” and could include books purchased by the District, your child’s teacher, as well as donated books. At the link below, you will find a list of books that could be included in your student’s classroom collection. This is not an exhaustive list.

Complete this form by indicating whether your student can access the language arts classroom collection. Parents who choose not to let their child access the classroom collection must be sure their student has an appropriate book to read when the lesson allows a student to select their own book. If you have questions, please contact your student’s language arts teacher.
